

MONDAYS

with Mike

MONDAYS

A Memorial Day reflection that we can use every day

Patriotism is a living fire of unquestioned belief and purpose.

The opening quote by Frank Knox speaks to the strength that belief and purpose create.

When we think of the many fallen heroes, current servicemen and women, and those that stand “in waiting” for their call to serve, each has/had this living fire deep within their spirit.

Doing something for the greater good in an unselfish manner is the truest sense of service. May we remember this belief as we take one more opportunity to honor and celebrate Memorial Day.

And, may we take this type of service mindset into our work areas, homes, and friendship circles.

Have a week filled with belief and purpose!