The Ben Hogan Approach

Ben Hogan was a legendary golfer, including 242 top 10 finishes on the Professional Golf Tour (PGA) between 1932 and 1970 and winning 30 tournaments between 1946 and 1948.

What is even more impressive than these statistics is the fact that he was nearly killed in a head-on collision with a Greyhound bus in 1949. While predictions were made that he would never walk again, in just 16 months after the accident, he won the 1950 US Open.

His commitment to the following qualities was his recipe for survival and success:

- Intensity
- Commitment
- Concentration
- Work ethic
- Conviction to improve

What if we all would adopt Ben Hogan's approach by engaging his commitment qualities? Our life courses and careers may just be record-setting, as well! It's true, spectacular preparation precedes spectacular performance.

Have a great week!
